Abstract

Information is given on the distribution of 17 species of Sphecidae and 106 species of Crabronidae in Eastern Siberia and the Russian Far East. First records for Eastern Siberia are Crossocerus (Crossocerus) tarsatus (SHUCKARD, 1837), Diodontus handlirschi KOHL, 1888, Gorytes albidulus (LEPELETIER, 1832), Gorytes procrustes HANDLIRSCH, 1888, Nysson interruptus (FABRICIUS, 1798), Oxybelus haemorrhoidalis OLIVIER, 1812 and Pemphredon lethifer (SHUCKARD, 1837). First recorded from Far East is Ectemnius (Ectemnius) guttatus (VANDER LINDEN, 1829).

Introduction

The digger wasp fauna of Siberia and the Far East of Russia has moved more into the focus of entomologists during recent years. Wolf-Harald Liebig carried out four expeditions to Eastern Siberia and the Far East. Two of these excursions (2007 and 2014) examined the western banks of Lake Baikal (Irkutsk Province), another (2012) Buryat Republic, and the last (2014) Primorskii Territory. Most records presented here resulted from these expeditions. Supplementary records are from material in the collection of The Bavarian State Collection of Zoology Munich (Zoologische Staatssammlung München) (mainly specimens from the island Sakhalin), the collection of Senckenberg Deutsches Entomologisches Institut, and the private collections of C. Schmid-Egger (Berlin) and M. Jänicke (Eisenberg).

Material and methods

For the present study 892 specimens (162 Sphecidae, 730 Crabronidae) were examined. Determination of most specimens was undertaken with the key by NEMKOV et al. (1995). Additionally, the keys by BOUČEK (2001), DANILOV (2014b), DOLFFUSS (2010, 2013), GAYUBO & FELTON (2000), JACOBS (2007), KOHL (1906), MARSHAKOV (1979), NEMKOV (1996) and SCHMID-EGGER (2016) were used. For identification of Gorytes LATREILLE, 1805 the keys by NEMKOV (1989, 1990) and SCHMID-EGGER (2002) were used. However, the identification of some males proved to be problematic. According to SCHMID-EGGER (personal communication), some "European" taxa from the Far East represent separate species. This hypothesis can only be confirmed by revision of the Palaearctic species. The distribution of digger wasps in Eastern Siberia is treated in the catalogues of NEMKOV (2008, 2009, 2012a), DANILOV (2014a) and BELOKOBILSKIJ & LELEJ (2017) if not mentioned otherwise. Distribution data of all species here listed are presented in the catalogue of BELOKOBILSKIJ & LELEJ (2017). Records from Russia are given for the main geographic parts as treated by BELOKOBILSKIJ & LELEJ (2017). Distribution in the provinces may check in the catalogue. New local records from the Russian provinces are marked with an asterisk (*). Specimens are stored in coll. Liebig (Bad Muskau) and coll. Jacobs (Ranzin), in the coll. of The Bavarian State Collection of Zoology Munich (leg. Nesterov, Golovushkin), coll. Schmid-Egger (Berlin) (leg. Lelej, Mattes and some specimens leg. Nesterov) and the coll. Jänicke (Eisenberg) (leg. Jänicke). Specimens collected by Taeger are stored in the coll. of Senckenberg Deutsches Entomologisches Institut Müncheberg. The maps were constructed with help of Google Earth Pro (© 2017 Google, © 2017 ZENRIN, Image Landsat / Copernicus, US Dept. of State Geographer). The coordinates are in decimal degrees. Collecting dates are in German format, as on the collecting labels. Especially elder collecting labels bears no coordinates. Coordinates of this collecting sites are completed by the authors. Maybe, it isn't the real collecting place sometimes, but the next settlement.

Distribution: Russia: European Part, Urals, Western and Eastern Siberia, Far East. – Europe, North Africa, Azerbaijan, Turkey, Iran, Turkmenistan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan, Kyrgyzstan, Kazakhstan, Mongolia, Japan, North and South America.

Remark: The differentiation between the subspecies C. elongatulus (s. str.) and C. elongatulus annulatus LEPELETTIER & BRULLÉ, 1835 as made by BELOKOBYLSKIJ & LELEJ (2017) seems doubtful. The common occurrence of two subspecies in a wide range of distribution contradicts the concept of subspecies. Here is a need of clearing the taxonomy and the distribution data. So we don't follow this opinion.

The male differs from the nominate form by less yellow markings (see LECLERCQ 1974). Maybe these are color variants only.
